Participation Agreement for Parenting Plan Mediation

When a couple who is actively raising children goes through a separation and/or a divorce, their relationship continues but transforms into that of co-parents. Parenting plan mediation is meant to help you with this transition and define what this new relationship will look like while keeping the focus on the business of raising children in the new family system.

_____ and _____ (hereafter referred to as parties) agree that they are entering into mediation with Ariella Goodwine Fisher, MFT (hereafter referred to as the mediator) in order to reach agreements related to the parenting plan they intend to adhere to during their relationship as co-parents.

The mediation process is entirely voluntary, and any party can withdraw from this mediation at any time. The mediator may terminate the mediation process if the mediator determines that the process is no longer appropriate, or either of the parties are not negotiating in good faith.

Neither party shall call the mediator to testify in any litigation, administrative proceeding, arbitration, or any other proceeding, nor introduce into such proceedings any information obtained during the mediation process and shall not try to compel the production of any of the mediator's records.

In the event that the mediator gives any statement concerning the law(s) affecting the issues being mediated, the parties understand that it is not given as legal advice or with either of their individual interests in mind and they are hereby advised to seek independent legal counsel to so advise them.

The parties agree to suspend any pending litigation relating to custody and parenting during the remainder of the Parenting Plan Mediation.

Once all of the issues related to the Parenting Plan have been mediated, the mediator may prepare a Memorandum of Understanding, which is not intended to be a legally binding document. The parties will have the opportunity to review the document before it is finalized. Once finalized, the parties will sign it indicating their understanding that it accurately reflects the agreements reached by them. If the parties desire a legally binding agreement, they agree to submit the Memorandum of Understanding to an attorney of their choice for review and that one or the other (or a mediating attorney) will prepare a final, written, legally sufficient and binding agreement incorporating the terms of the Memorandum and such additional matters as the attorneys determine are required in order to make the agreement legally complete.

Confidentiality

Any information that you disclose in the course of Parenting Plan Mediation is held in strict confidence. Nothing said in, and no papers prepared for or during this mediation, can be used in any civil lawsuit or proceeding unless all parties and the mediator consent to disclosure. However, this Agreement to Mediate is not confidential, and the parties waive any right to claim that it is subject to the confidentiality applicable to the mediation. There are some exceptions to confidentiality, which are required by California law. I am legally required to report all incidents of suspected child, elder or dependent adult abuse to the appropriate authorities. I am also legally mandated to take preventative action should a client present a danger to him/herself or others.

We will discuss together any attorneys, additional mediators or other personnel involved in your case that you may want me to speak with. I will speak to these individuals only after both parties have been informed about what will be communicated and both parties have provided written consent for these communications.
